FAQs

What is a notary public?

Expand

A notary public is a licensed official who serves as an objective, impartial witness to the signing of legal documents and other important paperwork.

How are documents notarized?

Expand

After the notary confirms the signer's identity, the signer can sign the document. Then, the notary public notarizes the document with an official stamp where they'll add the date and their own signature.

Why do documents need to be notarized?

Expand

Notarized documents are designed to deter fraud since the notary public reviews an individual's identification prior to certifying the signature.

Notaries also ensure a document is executed correctly since they review the paperwork before it's signed.

What types of documents require notarization?

Expand

Legal documents like insurance and healthcare forms, financial paperwork, and real estate transactions generally require a notarized signature. Specific types of documents that need to be notarized include:

- Articles of incorporation
- Leases
- Legal affidavits
- Passport application
- Mortgage documents
- Building permits
